

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

March 11, 2025

Contact:

Keyarah Watson

Director of Communications and Digital Media

Mayor's Office of Employment Development

Keyarah.Watson@baltimorecity.gov

Baltimore City Mayor's Office of Employment Development Hosts Federal to Future Career Transition Expo to Support Displaced Federal Employees

Baltimore, MD – Recent federal policy changes have resulted in significant job losses across our community, impacting many dedicated workers. The Baltimore City Mayor's Office of Employment Development (MOED) remains steadfast in its commitment to economic justice, ensuring that every affected worker has access to the resources and opportunities needed to transition into meaningful employment.

To support displaced federal employees, MOED, alongside its partners, is hosting the Federal to Future Career Transition Expo—the first of many initiatives aimed at connecting skilled professionals with employers eager to hire. This event serves as a vital resource for those navigating career transitions. Public and private sector employers are slated to attend including the Baltimore City Health Department, Baltimore City Department of Transportation, Johns Hopkins, Baltimore City Community College, LifeBridge Health, MedStar, and many more.

"MOED stands with Baltimore's workers during this challenging time. Through the Federal to Future Career Transition Expo and our ongoing workforce initiatives, we are committed to providing displaced federal employees with the support and connections they need to secure meaningful employment and continue contributing their skills to our city's economy," said MacKenzie Garvin, Esq., Director of the Mayor's Office of Employment Development.

"Baltimore is a city of opportunity, driven by resilience, innovation, and a dynamic workforce. Whether in the public or private sector, there's a place for you to grow, lead, and thrive here. As we navigate these workforce shifts, we remain committed to ensuring that every worker has access to the resources they need to build a strong future. Your skills and talent are invaluable to the success of our city," said Mayor Brandon M. Scott.

Event Details:

Date: March 20, 2025

Time: 10:00 AM – 2:00 PM

Location: New Psalmist Baptist Church (6020 Marian Dr, Baltimore, MD 21215)

Register: bit.ly/fedtofuture

MOED resources for impacted federal workers:

Beyond this event, MOED's Baltimore City Career Centers—located in Northwest, East, and South Baltimore—are open every weekday, providing free career services such as unemployment insurance assistance, job search support, and career training to help individuals re-enter the workforce.

- Visit a Baltimore City Career Center - Find a location near you: bit.ly/bmorecenters
- Request Virtual Assistance - Connect with us online: bit.ly/contactmoed
- View MOED's Now Hiring Job Board: bit.ly/bmore-jobs
- See our compilation of federal employee and contractor resource pages:
bit.ly/fed-resources

To access all of MOED's services, locations, and additional support for impacted federal workers, please visit our landing page: bit.ly/worker-support.

About the Baltimore City Mayor's Office of Employment Development

The Baltimore City Mayor's Office of Employment Development (MOED) is committed to empowering Baltimore residents through job placement, training programs, and support services. In 2024, MOED offered YouthWorks summer jobs to over 10,000 young people across more than 750 employer partners. MOED also placed more than 3,000 city residents in jobs in fiscal year 2024. Additionally, MOED supports businesses with recruitment services, strategic advisement, and business grants—servicing over 1,000 businesses in fiscal year 2024. Our mission is to promote economic justice in Baltimore City by connecting individuals with meaningful employment opportunities and businesses with the city's brightest talent.